THE REST THAT FOLLOWS PAIN

The night has come, and the starlight
Falls on the restless sea
Like a gleam of hope through the darkness
Of a weary doubt to me.

I see the foam of the billow
Flash like the shining rain,
Then fall into silence and shadow,
Like the rest that follows pain.

O, wonderful, beautiful billow,
With your changing shadow and shine,
Clasping the stars in your bosom,
I think your life is like mine.

Like mine, reaching through darkness
From the restless, moaning sea,
Pleading with ceaseless endeavor
For a life that can never be.

You clasp your mantle, O billow,
With gems from the brow of night;
I grasp, through shadowy future,
Sweet rays of heavenly light.

Oh, life of a ceaseless endeavor;
Oh, wave of the troubled sea;
Star of the weary night-watch,
Beacon of faith to me.

O, heaven, with dowers of promise;
O, earth, with travail and care;
Soul of God's mighty conception,
Peace on the brow of despair.

I stand by the surging ocean—
The starlight falls on the foam,
And a feeling of rest comes o'er me,
Like a wanderer nearing his home.

A SNOW THOUGHT.

Oh! the snow came so tenderly.
Like happy white nuns at play,
And the outstretched arms of the oak tree
Seemed covered with silver spray.

And two small brown birds were a-singing
A dear little song of love.
Like many white angels a ringing
Peace to the world from above.

The leaves of the ever-green ivy
Seemed open books of prayer,
Their pages of praise turned tenderly
By fair white spirits of air.

Once they were sisters of charity,
These little white stars of snow;
A blue-bell whispered it all to me
Oh! ever, so long ago.

And the rough brown arm of the oak tree
Was a gloomy convent small,
Where sun-warm kisses fell cheerily
And brightened the dusky wall.

The leaves of the ever green ivy
Were really white books of praise,
Where the dear white nuns read reverently
Their beautiful convent lays.

And the little brown birds a-singing
Were always the convent choir;
And each little chorister ringing,
Was worthy quite of its hire.

So now when the snow falls tenderly,
The spirit of song takes wing;
Then grim leaflets of swaying ivy
A beautiful thought I sing.

CONQUERING A HUSBAND.

"Uncle Phil has been lecturing me again!" exclaimed Mrs. Marian Dykes, as her husband came home to tea one evening. "I cannot, and I will not, stand it any longer," and the young wife dropped into a chair as though the last remaining portion of her strength had left her.

What was the subject of the lecture, my dear," inquired Mr. Dykes, with a cheerful smile, as though he did not regard the situation as at all desperate.

"You know very well that Uncle Phil has but one subject."

"And that is extravagance, or the reverse, economy," added Mr. Dykes.

"Of course that was the subject of the lecture; and you always take his side of the question. Uncle Phil has ten times as much influence with you as I have. Whatever he says is right, and whatever I say is wrong," retorted Mrs. Dykes rather warmly.

"If supper is ready, I think we had better attend to that next; and we shall have the whole evening to discuss Uncle Phil's lecture. The subject will keep for awhile."

"But Uncle Phil will be here to take part in the disscussiou; and that is just what I don't want. He overshadows me entirely when he says anything, and I might as well hold my tongue as speak," pouted the wife.

"Uncle Phil will not be here, Marian. It is half past six, and he has to go to a church meeting at seven."

"Very well but I am going to have something done this time. I won't have Uncle Phil here any longer. If he is to stay in this house I shall not."

Mrs. Dykes was very young, and her angry pout, as she sailed out of the room, made her look decidedly pretty; at least so thought her husband. But before she was fairly out, the door opened and Uncle Phil came in. The door was ajar and he must have been in the hall during some portion of the lady's severe remarks about him. But he looked as placid as though earth had no sorrow for him. He was a man of fifty, though his hair and beard were white enough for seventy.

He did not seem like a man who could be very disagreeable if he tried. He had a deaconish look about his face, that of a serious though not austere man. Certainly no one would have taken him for a shipmaster, but he had spent most of his life at sea or in foreign parts. He used to read the Bible to his crew every Sunday, and never allow any swearing or other bad language in his presence on board ship. Though he was a "psalm singing skipper," no captain was ever more popular with his men then Captain Dykes.

Uncle Phil had been married in early life, but his wife died while he was absent on a long voyage. He had recently given up the sea, and retired to his native town, now an important place of 10,000 inhabitants. He found himself a stranger there, but at his own request his nephew had taken him as a boarder.

The gossips were not a little bothered to determine whether the retired shipmaster was rich or poor. He engaged in every church and benevolent enterprise, and contributed moderately of his means.

Charles Dykes had opened a store in Tripleton a year before, and everybody thought he was doing well. Mrs. Dykes thought so, though Charles himself insisted that he was not making money very rapidly; he could not tell how much until he balanced his books and took account of stock. In the main he was a prudent, careful young man, or at least was disposed to be so.

Uncle Phil made a hasty supper, and then went to his meeting. He acted just a little strangely for him, though the smile had not deserted his face. He said less than usual, and seemed to be thinking very earnestly about something.

"Do you suppose he heard what I said Charles?" asked Mrs. Dykes, after Uncle Phil had gone.

"I think not; but you ought not to say anything behind his back that you would not say to his face," replied the husband. "Uncle Phil is a good man, one of the salt of the earth.

"He is altogether too salt for me. If I should put too much salt in the doughnuts, you would not like them Uncle Phil is salter than Lot's wife."

"I am sorry you don't like him, Marian."

"I can't like a man who is continually tripping me up, and lecturing me upon economy. You ought to know better than he does what you can afford."

"I am sure nothing but his interest in us prompts him to say anything. If one means well almost anything can be excused."

"When I said that I wished you would keep a horse so I could ride out every day or two, he read me a lecture half an hour in length. Whether he heard me or not, I said just what I meant. You must get him out of the house in some way, Charles. Take your clerk to board, and tell your uncle we must have the room."

"If I tell him to go, I shall tell the reason why I do so."

"I am willing to bear all the blame. I don't want any one in the house to come between me and my husband," said the lady with a deal of spirit.

"Uncle Phil does not come between you and me, Marian. That is absurd."

"I have asked you, and even begged you a dozen times, to keep a horse. Uncel Phil takes sides with you against me."

"But he never said horse to me in his life. I can't afford to keep a horse."

"Yes, you can Charles. They say you are doing more business than Tinkham, and he keeps two horses; and his wife looks patronizingly down on me from her carryall when she meets me in the street," added Mrs. Dykes, with considerable bitterness in her tone.

"I know nothing about Tinkham's business, and I do know something about my own," replied Mr. Dykes.

Before the supper things were removed Charles Dykes had promised to buy a horse and buggy. It appeared to be the only way in which he could induce his wife to allow Uncle Phil to remain in the house. Doubtless he was weak to yield the point against his own judgement.

In the evening 'Squire Graves made a friendly call. Mrs. Dykes was very glad to see him, for he had a lady's horse to sell. It was just the animal she wanted, and as she had conquered her husband once that day, she intended to have the horse trade settled that evening.

"Glad to see you, 'Squire; anything new?" the young merchant began, doing the usual common-places.

"There is news, but I suppose you have heard it," replied the visitor.

"I haven't heard anything; what is it?"

Haven't you heard that Tinkham has been attached?"

"Tinkham! Is it possible?" exclaimed Mr. Dykes, glancing at his wife.

"It's a fact; a keeper was put in his store this afternoon, and an attachment put on his horse and carriages."

"That was all because he kept two horses when one was enough for him," interposed Mrs. Dykes.

With her the moral was between two horses and one.

Before the squire left he had sold his lady's horse. Mrs. Dykes was perfectly happy, and her heart began to warm even toward poor Uncle Phil. When the retired shipmaster came in from the meeting, there were a dozen things she wanted to do for his comfort. The lady had beaten her husband and his uncle, and she was satisfied.

Before breakfast the next morning 'Squire Graves' man led the horse over and put him in the little stable. One of the clerks was to take care of him. Uncle Phil saw the purchase, but he said nothing unpleasant. He looked the animal over, said he was worth the hundred dollars to be paid for him in goods from the store. Marian even thought she liked Uncle Phil then. He did not prophesy any evil or disaster.

After breakfast the lady thought she would drive to her father's, in the next town.

She returned in season for dinner.

But Uncle Phil did not come down to that meal. The lady rang the bell a second time, but with no better result. Uncle Phil evidently did not hear the bell, for he never kept the table waiting for him. The door was wide open, and she went in. The shipmaster was not there. His trunk was not there; the picture of the Seabird, in which he had sailed many a voyage, had been taken from the wall.

Was it possible that Uncle Phil had gone without even saying good-bye to them? There was a letter on the table. It was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dykes." With the letter in her hand she hastened down to the dinner-room. To say that she was astonished and chagrined, would not half express her feeling.

"Uncle Phil had gone?" she exclaimed. "He has left for good, bag and baggage." She tossed the letter upon the table, for she had not the courage to open it.

"Then I suppose you are quite satisfied, Marian. You have got the horse, and got rid of Uncle Phil," said Mr. Dykes, greatly grieved to learn that the worthy man had gone; and he saw that he must have heard the impulsive words of Mrs. Dykes the evening before.

Mrs. Dykes dropped into her chair at the table, and burst into tears. Just as she had become reconciled to the boarder, he had fled without even a word of explanation. She intended to treat him with the utmost kindness and consideration, as a noble warrior treats a falled foe. Just then she felt as though she would be willing to lose the horse to regain Uncle Phil.

Charles opened the letter. It was very short, but there was not a particle of bitterness in it. He should still pray for them, and desiren to do all he could to serve and make them happy.

"I will go back to him and beg him to come back, Charles!" exclaimed the weeping wife. "You will never forgive me."

"I am very sorry he has gone, but I will not hate you, Marian. We will call upon him this evening at the hotel."

They did call. Uncle Phil was exactly the same as he had been before. He was glad to see them, and there was not a particle of change in his tone or manner. Both Charles and his wife tried to say something about his leaving their house; but he headed them off every time. He would not permit the matter to be mentioned. They went home, unable even to get in an apology.

Both of them missed the kindly words and wholesome advice of the good man, though Mrs. Dykes would not acknowledge it. His good influence upon both was lost. Even Charles became reckles in his finances.

The close of Tinkham's store brought more business to the young merchant for a time, though the bankrupt's successor soon made things exciting for him. A ruinous competition followed. No longer restrained by Uncle Phil's prudent counsels, Charles branched out, and grasped more than he could handle.

At the end of the year the balance-sheet was not pleasing to look upon. Then followed a a reckless attempt to recover lost ground. Notes at the Tripleton Bank became very troublesome. One of them was given for a new piano. People said Dykes was living too fast. The young merchant was worried. He had yielded to one extravagance and there was a long train behind it.

His next balance-sheet showed that he was three thousand dollars in debt, and his stock was not worth half the sum. He saw that must fail. After supper, one evening, he told his wife all about it. It would be a terrible humiliation to fail, as Tinkham had; and poor Marian wept as though her heart would break.

In the midst of the scene Uncle Phil walked into the room, as he always did, without the ceremony of knocking. He often called.

"Uncle Phil, I am going to fail, for I cannot pay a note of four hundred dollars that falls due to-morrow," said Charles, bitterly, when he saw that he could not conceal the facts from the good man.

"How much do you owe in all, Charles?" asked Uncle Phil.

"About three thousand dollars," groaned Charles.

"Will three thousand put you on your feet, solid?"

"Yes, sir; but can't raise three hundred."

"I will give you a check for three thousand in the morning. I will be at the store at eight o'clock. I noticed that you have looked worried lately; but you said nothing to me."

"I could not say anything to you, uncle; and I cannot take your money, after what has happened."

"Nothing has happened yet, and with the blessing of God, nothing shall happen."

Uncle Phil would not understand him.

"You may help me on one condition," added Charles, after some discussion. "And that is that you will come back and live with us."

Marian joined in insisting upon this condition, and the good man yielded. He used no reproaches; he would not even say, "I told you so." The note was paid the next day, and in the evening Uncle Phil was domiciled in his old apartment quite as happy as the young people.

Charles sold the lady's horse, the buggy, the piano, and other extras, and reduced all his expenses to a very reasonable figure. Marian was happy again, and did not believe there was any too much salt about Uncle Phil. She had given up the business of conquering a husband. In fact, both of them have come to believe that neither should conquer, or try to conquer, the other.

After a while it came out that Uncle Phil was worth at least fifty thousand dollars. Doubtless the church and the missions will get some of it; but it is probable that Charles Dykes will be remembered, though both he and his wife sincerely hope that the good man will live till he is a hundred.—Good Cheer.

ORGAN GRINDER'S PROFITS.

You sympathetic ladies who send nickels and silver pieces by a servant to the poor organ grinder who stands at your door, or who throw down to him from an upper window pennies wrapped in thick writing paper, may like to know how much the man gets in the course of the day, and what he does with his money. For the latter, he does not spend more than a seventh part of it. He puts it in a bag and then in a long, low chest in his room, to save until he has enough to go back to Southern Italy and live at ease. More often he joins every night a select club of fellow-countrymen, who stack up their organs at the end of the room, and gamble, gamble the pennies away in long and deliceous excitement. How much, think you, does he earn? More than a carpenter, or a bricklayer, or a policeman, or a postman, or a salesman in a store, who wears gloves and a silk hat. He averages $4 a day. He labors systematically, and has his regular beat, and his varied art to extract the pennies from persons of each class he plays before. As he expressed himself in a moment of rare expansiveness, he "plays on 200 blocks every day, and it's a poor block that does not give two cents."

How to Amuse a Baby.

It is an important question, and frequently in the minds of young mothers: How can I get a little more time for myself and still have the baby happy? I know of one way to do this, and having tried it faithfully can recommend it. After the morning nap, and the rest which comes after it, seat baby on the floor, put within his reach a basket in which you have placed such playthings as are adapted to his taste; for instance, my basket this morning contained a tin soldier on horseback, an impossible looking rabbit of red canton flannel—the gift of a friend who evidently does not 'commune with nature in her visible form," a piece of rope, a ball of yarn, a few empty spools, one spool of basting thread, which affords endless amusement; a few blocks of irregular shape and brightly colored, and lastly a linen picture-book, a relic of some other childhood long past. These single objects amuse a restless baby for an hour at a time, and to be put on the floor and be allowed to unpack the basket is a daily pleasure; the contents of the basket can be changed, or better still, have two baskets; give one one day and the other the next; my experience with children warrants me in concluding this better than a complete and finished plaything. They value something upon which they can exercise the imagination.

Respecting the early postal faccultties in Texas a writer in the Galveston News says: "The intelligence of the death of President Jackson was brought to Galveston by the master of an Italian brig, whose craft had stopped at the mouth of the Mississippi and received a New Orleans paper containing an account of the death of 'Old Hickory.' Neither the Captain nor any of his crew being able to read English, the paper was untouched until three days after the arrival of the brig at this port, when it was accidentally discovered and the tidings were given to the people of Texas fourteen days after the President's death."

What Millionaires Eat.

Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia, is the wealthiest and one of the oldest of the United States Senators. He is also one of the plainest men to be found anywhere. He may be called a "home granny." He wears long white whiskers and store clothes. He is fond of old-fashioned things, especially olden-time dinners. The other day he sat in the cloakroom on the Democratic side of the Senete with a number of his old Senatorial friends, smoking and joking. Finally the conversation turned on dinners and good things to eat. Senator Butler, of South Carolina, knows a good dinner as well as any man when it is served out to him, and in his most eloquent terms he told of how he liked canvass-back duck and sauterne, and Canada grouse and champagne and tarrapin and good old sherry, and he wanted it served up hot, with a royal old crowd of boys around him. Then several other Senators named their favorite dishes. Senator Brown looked on and listened, while a stream of water trickled out of his mouth. Finally, he broke in:

"Well gentlemen, you may talk of your terrapin and champagne, and your crowds, and all that, but you may just dish up old Joe Brown and his old woman puddle duck and sweet potatoes."

And he wiped his mouth on his coat-sleeve and fairly worked his jaw at the thought of it.

The Painter's Ruse.

There lived in Brussels a celebrated painter named Wiertz, whose eccentricities were such as to give him the name of the 'Crazy Artist.' That there was method in his madness the following anecdote shows:

After having finished a portrait of the aristocratic Countess de Armos, who pretended to be only thirty when nearly sixty, she refused to accept the painting, saying it did not look anything like herself, and that her most intimate friends would not recognize a single feature of her on that piece of canvas.

Wiertz smiled kindly at the remark, and, as a true knight of old, gallantly conducted the lady to her carriage.

Next morning there was a grand disturbance in the Rue de Madeline.

A big crowd was gathered before a window, and the following was whispered from ear to ear.

'Is the Countess de Arnos really in goal for her debts?'

Wiertz had exercised a little vengeance towards his noble but unfair customer.

As soon as she had refused the portrait he set to work, and painted a few iron bars on the picture, with these words: 'In goal for debt.'

He exhibited the painting in a jeweller's window in the principal street of Brussels, and the effect was itstantaneous.

A few hours later the Countess was back at Wiertz's pouring invectives on him at high presure—'to have exhibited her likeness under such scandalous—'&c.

'Most noble lady,' was the artist's reply, 'you said the painting did not look anything like yourself, and that your most intimate friends would not have recognized a single one of your features in the picture. I wanted to test the truth of your statement; that is all.'

The portrait was taken away, the city laughed, the artist charged double price, and gave the amount to the poor of the city.

After the alarmed bystanders had almost frozen their fingers in rescuing an inebriate who had fallen overboard from a wharf in Baltimore, he took up a collection, and with the 79 cents that he got he sidled off to the nearest barroom. A merchant who had been a quiet spectator said: "This makes the fifth time that fellow has fallen into the water this month. I fancy it's his last resort when he wants money to get a drink, as he always takes up a collection afterward."

The Bad Boy's Pa in a Trap.

When a man gets old and thinks he knows it all there is no use trying to argue with him, so I unbuckled my skates and pulled them off and he put them on. Well, he wabbled about for a few minutes, like a feller that has been drinking gin, and he held on to things till he thought he had got to his bearings, when he struck out for the back end of the basement. As he came along by the furnace one leg began to go over towards the neighbors', and he grabbed hold of the corner of the furnace, swung around behind it, out of sight, and we heard an earthquake, and something snapped like a steel trap, and pa yelled, 'by crimus,' and ma came down stairs after some sassidge for breakfast, and she saw pa and she said 'Merciful goodness,' and by that time me and my chum had got there. Well, you'd a dide to see pa. He had come down like a ton of coal, right on that steel trap, and it had sprung and caught a whole mouthful of pa's pants, and about a pound and a half or two pounds of meat, and pa was grating his teeth to try and stand it. O, it was the most ridiculous position I ever saw pa into, and he got mad and told me to unspring the trap. We turned him over and me and my chum tried our best to open the trap, but it was one of these traps with a strong spring, and we couldn't. Pa was the only one that could unspring the trap, and he couldn't go around behind himself to get at it; so I told him I would go after a doctor, but he said this was a place where a doctor was no good, and he wanted a plumber or a blacksmith. Pa wanted to go up in the parlor to sit on the sofa while I was gone after the plumber, but the trap was chained to the furnace, and we couldn't get it loose, so pa had to lay there on the cement floor till the plumber came. The plumber laughed at pa, and said he had done all kinds of plumbing before, but he never had a call like that. Well, he got pa out, and I don't suppose there is a madder man in this town than pa, but there was nobody to blame but himself. Say, do you see how I can be blamed about it?

A Puss Now in Fashion.

"Are Angora cats getting to be fashionable for pets?' asked a reporter of a dealer.

'Oh, yes, indeed,' was the reply; 'within the last month the demand has been quite large and strange to say I sell as many by mail as I do in the city. Only yesterday I sent one to New Orleans and last week one to Chicago. They seem to be rapidly taking the place of pups. Come in and see the cats?' So saying, the reporter was shown into a room where a dozen or more animals with long tails and hair sweeping the floor were playing together or sleeping on hair cushions. Some were white, some tortoise and others mouse-colored, or blue, in the parlance of the trade.

'There are also black and chinchilla cats," said the dealer. 'These blue ones are the rarest, but the white cats seem to be the greatest favorites. Some people maintain that only the white cats are the pure breed, but that is not so, as quite frequently white cats will have different colored kittens.

'What is the most valuable cat you have?"

'This large white Tom is the most expensive; he is worth $50. The other cats are worth from $40 to $50. The kittens are worth $20 for the males and $15 for the female.'

The dealer then explained the difference between the Angora and the Persian cats, which is very slight, the persians having a longer face and larger ears. The animals are very delicate and require great care in raising, colds being the chief enemies of the feline kind. Each cat must have a hair cushion and be washed regularly and rubbed with cocoanut oil. Birds and scraped beef are found to be the best food for them. A few cats are imported from England, but most of them are raised by a man in maine.

A few years ago cotton seed was regarded as a waste material, to be disposed of with as little expense as possible. Now it is not only employed as a general fertilizer on many plantations, but thousands of tons of it are sold at the oil mills, where, after the oil has been expressed, the cake is used for feeding all kinds of stock.

Claimants by the Hundred.

WASHINGTON, January 11.—Representative Brown, of Pennsylvania, who is a member of the House claims committee, said that the bills referred to his committee already numbered over three hundred for the two bill days called by the Speaker. It was impossible to estimate what would be piled upon the committee's shoulders at this rate, and the subjects embrace everything except war claims. In order to facilitate the transmission of business pending the appointment of sub-committees each of the fifteen members of the claims committee had been assigned three bills to investigate.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15., '84.

An air of business pervades the Capital now, and since the recess the temper of Congressmen seems to be in the direction of attention to duty. If professions are any index of intentions the present Congress will be long remembered for its virtues and its good works. There is talk of lobbies and lobbyists, and no doubt they are here, considering the various schemes and interests which need their aid, but the present indications are that they will find hard picking if their returns depend upon success. It looks like a cold winter for the lobbyist who works for a contingent fee. Concerning tariff legislation, there is a good deal of talk about an alliance between the Republicans and high tariff Democrats to prevent the passage of any bill; and no doubt there are those on both sides who would like to see such an alliance made, but those who understand the situation know that there is the same diversity of opinion among the Republicans on this question as prevails among the Democrats. A debate would develope this fact, and for that reason the Republican leaders are anxious to keep the subject out of sight at present.

The discussion of probable, and possible, Presidential candidates is a leading industry around the hotel corridors and public loafing places, and it increases apace as the weeks bring nearer the nominating conventions. Mr. Blaine has recently declared very positively that he is not a candidate, and people begin to think he means is. I think he does, for the "Plumed Knight" knows that, notwithstanding he is the most popular man in the party, he could not be elected. The Republicans are really all at sea in the matter and their leaders admit that they have no prominent candidate whom they could carry through. Edmunds is considered about their strongest man, but he is not likely to be nominated, and he says he would not run if he was. They are talking about "Bob" Lincoln, who some think might pull through on the strength of his father's name; but there is not much sentimental politics now-a-days. Young Lincoln is a very clever gentleman, but there is not much Presidential timber in him, being quite an ordinary man in all respects. General Logan is really in the field, and is a stronger man in many respects than Arthur, but the prevailing opinion is that neither of these two could be elected if nominated. Considering the importance of Ohio, to the Republicans John Sherman has lately gathered a new impetus to his old boom. Some pretend to believe John will make it, but he won't. The leaders of the party are looking for some very rich man who will buy his way through That is their only chance.

Speaking of lobbyists and the methods of securing legislation, reminds me that there are some queer things. For instance, year after year the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill has contained a clause preventing competition in contracts for photo-lithographic work to be done for the Patent Office. A Mr. Peters, who has an establishment for doing that kind of work here, makes a profit of from $75,000 to $100.000 a year on work done for the Government. Under the terms of the law the work must be awarded to a Washington bidder if he is as low in his proposals as an outside bidder. The way the Department of the Interior interprets this is as follows: They advertise for proposals. If any foreign establishment is lower than Peters, he is asked if he will do it at the figures of the lowest bidder, and he, of course, says he will. The contract is then made with him for a certain amount of work of a certain kind. For all other kinds of work and for all work of the specified kind over and above what his contract calls for he charges his own price—result, big profits. He keeps a yacht and entertains Congressmen handsomely, makes expensive presents to their wives and daughters, and always has friends on the Appropriations Committee of both Houses. PHONO.

Fearing an Overflow of the Delaware.

TRENTON, January 11.—Watermen have been watching the Deleware river suspiciously for days past, during which time it has presented a marked similarity to the comdition of affairs in the winter of 1877, when the back-water freshet occured, doing untold damage on both sides of the river. The rain on Tuesday and last night caused an overflow on the Pennsylvania shore for a considerable distance inland. Farmers along the river found their horses and cows standing waist-deep in water in their stalls this morning.

Death Under the Ice.

WILKESBARRE, Jan. 6.—Alice Major and Sarah Marsden, of the town of Forty Fort, Luzerne county, cultured young ladies and highly connected, were drownded in the Susquehanna river yesterday evening. They were skating in company with a young man, who also went down but managed to save himself. The girls did not utter a word when they went through the ice, before sinking cried out "Goodby." At the plazethe accident occurred the ice is fully eight inches thick. The searching parties, which were organized this morning with implements to remove the ice, found the bodies about 1,000 feet from where they broke through the ice. The girl's bodies were taken to the homes of their parents.

A Big Mortgage.

The Sunbury Daily says that on last Friday evening there was filed in the recorder's office, in that place, a mortgage executed by the board, Pa. & Western railroad company to the Farmers' loan and trust company, of New York, trustees, for the sum of $11,500,000. Said sum too is in order to enable the railroad company to construct, equip, complete and put in operation its line of railroad between the city of Pittsburg and the borough of Ashland, in the county of Schuylkill, and is to extend through the counties of Alleghany, Westmoreland, Indiana, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata, Snyder, Northumberland and Schuykill to the borough of Ashland with second track and branches. The road is to cross the Susquehanna river at Herndon from which point it will very likely follow the course of the Reading road to Ashland.

Makes but Seven Stops.

The train that makes the run of 912 miles between New York and Chicago in 25½ hours makes only seven stops; but there are so many bridges to cross and villages to pass through that the speed is neccessarily relaxed as often as once every ten miles—else the average for the entire run might be much higher than 35.25 miles an hour. Its greatest speed is on the run between New York and Philadelphia, and here the slowest time is made in two minutes, and the fastest in fifty-seven seconds. Many a mile is made in sixty seconds. The locomotive on which Mr. A. Sinclair of the "American Machinest" made the trip from Jersey City to Broad Street, Philadelphia, weighs seventy-four tons, and draws a train weighing 200 tons, and on descending grades, when the machine was doing a mile a minute, the driving wheels made 253 revolutions a minute.

—Several large sled loads of young people from the surrounding country come to town every evening to attend the protracted meeting in the Evangelical church.

—Smith's German Olio will not bring the dead to life, or cure everything from a bald head to delirium tremens, but nevertheless it "gets away" with rheumatism.

—All communications for the JOURNAL should reach us on Mondays, in order to insure insertion the same week. Please send them in friends—but in time.

—Miss Lizzie Harter has returned from her Harrisburg trip very much pleased with her journey. She speaks in high terms of the kind usage by friends down there.

—Smith's German Olio is no new experiment. It has been in use in Germany for ages, but the secret of its manufacture was jealously guarded and only known to a few.

—C. A. Sturgis was up from Lewisburg this week and called at our office to see how things look. He expressed himself pleased with everything he saw. Call again, Charley.

—Boliver—correspondent of Farmer's Mills :—Your items all but one are not interesting enough to insert in the JOURNAL and that accounts for their nonappearance. Try again and make it better.

—Our band has made arrangements to hold a musical convention in town to begin on Monday January 28th and to close with two concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings following. Prof. Geo. Curns of Lock Haven has been engaged as conductor and the proceeds go for the benefit of the band. For particulars see bills.

—The Philharmonic Association of Shamokin, Pa., will hold a musical convention from Jan. 21st to 25th. Dr. W. Q. Perkins of New York is the conductor and our friend, Prof. W. T. Mayer of Aaronsburg the pianist, Mrs. W. Shaw, Sopranio Soloist. With such a combination of talent it will certainly be a grand success.

—Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hess of Boalsburg were in town last week attending the funeral of Hon. John Smith, deceased.

—Messrs. A. F. Kreamer and J. H. Kreamer are the executors of the estate of Jonathan Kreamer deceased. They publish their notice in another column. Read it.

—Mr. T. G. Erhard, of Haines township, will make sale of his live stock and farming implements on Tuesday, Feb. 12th, and expects to go west early in the Spring.

—W. W. Neese, residing about 2½ miles west of Coburn, advertises some of his live stock and farming implements at public sale on Wednesday Feb. 6th. See Bills.

—Our thanks are hereby tendered to the Philadelphia Times for a copy of its excellent almanac. It is one of the best arranged and most valuable books of reference for country editors published.

—Mr. J. Willis Musser has bought out the stage route from Woodward to Millheim, but also goes to Coburn every morning. He carries express and other goods from all points along the line at very moderate charges, and continues the calf and poultry business. tf —Our jolly friend Absalom Harter will soon be full of business again. The fact is Mr. Harter is well and widely known as a first class auctioneer. His services are entirely satisfactory wherever engaged.

—All the leading stores in Lewisburg have again made an agreement to close their stores and business places at 7 o'clock in the evening, except Saturdays. The plan seems to work well down there.

—Our nobby little friend Sammy Faust sold no less than 25 sleighs this season. Mr. Faust has an excellent reputation for good and neat work and is a first class salesman besides. May his shadow never grow less.

—A correspondent in the Mifflinburg Telegraph wants to know who gave that young man the liquor that made him so drunk on New Year's night. Yes, that's the question in many cases—where do they get it.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—We call the attention of our readers who may be in want of engineer's, architectural and carpenter work, to the fact that Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., of Millneim is master of these trades and is in possession of the best recommendations to this effect. Give him a trial by all means. 1-4t

—It is always well to say something favorable about a person instead of joining with a crowd in maligning him, because numerous enemies often show that there must be much good in the person abused. A man without enemies is a weak individual anyway.—Philipsburg Journal.

—Madisonburg is alive with music this week. The convention is under the able management of Prof. G. C. Curns of Lock Haven, a gentleman thoroughly competent to manage an institution of this kind. We hope our Madisonburg friends will have a full turn out at their concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings.

—Mr. Daniel Noll, the acknowledged snow prophet of Union county says that we are to have 42 snows this winter, and that 7 of this number have already fallen, which leaves 35 yet to come. This will be good news for those having fine sleighs and horses, with lots of time and money, but hardly for the old and decrepit, the sick and the poor.

—The Evangelical church at this place has commenced operations in the job of building their new church edifice. The old fence was removed and many loads of stone for the ground work have been hauled this week and it looks now as though they were going to push the work as soon as the weather permits. We think with pleasure of the time when another fine church building will adorn Penn Street.

—From fifty to one hundred sleds pass through town daily on their way to Coburn loaded with grain or lumber, besides a lot of small conveyances, which gives the road between this town and Coburn a lively and business-like aspect. Of course after the railroad is extended through to Bellefonte we look for an increase of travel and business in Millheim as well as at Coburn.

—Rev. S. L. Weist, Missionary Treasurer of the Evangelical Association, will preach on this and Rebersburg charges as follows :

Paradise,	"	18th,	"
Green Grove,	"	19th,	"

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.—At a special meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Evangelical Association of Millheim the following preamble and resolutions were passed :

WHEREAS, it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove by death, our beloved sister, Mary Ulrich, an earnest member of this society, therefore we recognize His hand in her removal.

Resolved, That we with the bereaved husband and children, bow in humble submission to the decrees of Him who doeth all things well, and look from earth to the Blessed Christ, our Saviour, for consolation in this time of bereavement.

Resolved, That we hereby assure the surviving husband and children of our deepest and most earnest sympathies and prayers in this their grief and tenderly commend them to Jesus, who will lighten their burden, for his assuring words are : Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the MILLHEIM JOURNAL and a copy of it presented to the family. COMMITTEE.

—If you want any sale bills printed come to this office. We will do your job quick, well and as cheap as any body else.

—DID YOU? In the advertisement of J. A. McDonnald, on our outside, please read "J. Eisenhuth, at his Drug Store, Millheim, instead of Dr. Barber, Middleburg, Pa.

Correction next week.

—THE SICK. Mr. B. F. Miller is getting better, he has been out some. Peter Walisa is also improving. Clymer Musser is still confined to the house, but is also better, and so is Mrs Walter, the wife of our excellent cashier. A number of children who had been down with a mild form of scarlet rash are all on the way of recovery as far as we have learned.

—A good question for debating clubs just now would be : Which is the most pleasant season of the year, winter or summer ? Guess a majority would be on the summer side, the way old winter has handled himself the past few weeks. But then exery season has its charms, its advantages and disadvantages—and it seems to be the disposition of us naughty mortals never to be entirely satisfied with matters as a benevolent Providence arranges them in this imperfect state of our being.

—Mr. John H. Musser of Aaronsburg sold three of his lots on Water street, Millheim and is about closing the sale of a feurth one. Jesse Kreamer, Harvey Hawk and Samuel Weiser, Jr., are the purchasers of said three lots and expect to put up their buildings next summer. That opens a new street and will help to fill up the southern part of the town. Go ahead, there is a good space left to build on, lots are reasonable and the best thing a young man can do is to procure a home for himself.

TAKE NOTICE.—Mr. H. K. Luse hereby respectfully informs the public that he has a large lot of seed potatoes known as the "White Elephant Potato' for sale at his residence at Millheim. We are in possession of a basket full of these potatoes and can give them a warm recommendation as the best yielding potatoe in the market. If you are in need of any seed potatoes do not fail to call on him. tf —Benjamin and John J. Orndorf, administrators of John Orndorf's estate, will sell at public sale on Saturday, Jan. 19th, on the premises of decedent in Haines township a lot of household goods.

—WE COME WITH SONG.—You are invited to attend the Musical Convention, to be held in the town hall at Madisonburg, commencing Monday evening, Jan. 14th, 1884 and closing Saturday evening, following with a Grand Concert of vocal and instrumental music. There will be two sessions each day, at 10 A. M. and 7 P. M. A large class will participate and will be assisted by talented musicians from Bellefonte, Zion, Rebersburg, Millheim, Jacksonville and Lock Haven.

The convention will be conducted by Prof. G. C. Curns, of Lock Haven, assisted by Miss Annie E. Fiedler of Madisonburg who will preside at the organ.

The Rebersburg Cornet Band will discourse music at the concert.

The proceeds will be applied to the completion of the Lutheran church at Madisonburg. Come and help the cause along. Tickets for the course 50 cents, single session tickets, 10 cts. Concert tickets 25 cts.

—Death was again busy in our midst during the past week. Mrs. Thomas, of Aaronsburg, widow of Jacob Thomas, long since deceased. Mrs. Mowry, wife of James Mowry of Penn township, and Mrs. David Ulrich, near Millheim, have all been called to their eternal home. Mrs Thomas always enjoyed excellent health and attained a good old age. Mrs. Mowry was sick for some weeks, but when we saw her, about a week before her demise, she did not seem so near the gates of death. Mrs. Ulrich was in feeble health for some weeks. She bore her affliction with resignation and christian fortitude.

Thus they go one after another, the fathers, the mothers, and we, who are younger move on to take their places. But our time is coming too when we will be called. Do we sometimes think of it ?

Chips from Madisonburg.

The topic for conversation at present is, convention.

Our new store is doing a thriving business.

A number of our young folks attended the musical convention at Jacksonville.

A free concert is held in the hotel almost every night after singing school.

All should attend the coucert in the town-hall on Saturday evening. The programme for the evening will consist of solos, duetts, quartettes, Anthems, comic songs, &c. It will undoubtedly prove a musical treat, and all lovers of music should attend.

Mr Editor, as the weather has been so extremely cold for the past week "Chips" were scarce, and consequently hard to pick, I suppose you will be able to get along with them for a week. You can look for another supply by next week from ANON.

The world's fair of 1887 will be held at San Francisco. $10.000,000 will be spent in putting up buildings. This is about twice as much as was spent for the Centennial buildings at Philadelphia.

Miscellaneous.

Gen. Grant is slowly recovering from the effects of his recent fall. Can walk with the aid of crutches.

At a meeting of stockholders of the Sunbury Smelting Works at Sunbury, Manager Kidney made an official report that the company was financially embarrassed, and that $75,000 were needed to place it on a sound basis. Philadelphia capitalists are negotiating for the purchase of the lead mine and smelters.

Six thousand six hundred miles of new railroads have been built in the United States during the past year at an approximate cost of $165,000,000. Pennsylvania comes fifth in the list of those states and territories that lead in railway construction, 330 miles of road having been placed within its borders during the year that has just closed.

The mining inspector for the middle district of Luzerne county, Penn., reports that during 1883 there were 488 accidents in the mines, of which number 204 were slight, 196 serious and 88 attended by fatal results. As a result of the fatal accidents thirty- six women were widowed and ninety-five children made orphans.

President Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, issued strict orders on the first of January regarding the issuing of passes this year. The number of passes is to be greatly reduced, and upon no conditions will they be issued except for the companies business.—Lewisburg Saturday News.

The tramp is improving in his profession. Their latest racket to obtain a square meal is as follows : He calls at the residence of a preacher and engages the minister to do some marrying for a sister. He has come some distance and is quite hungry and would like the preacher to give him some supper. The minister, calculating upon a good matrimonial fee for the next day, dines him. The preacher goes out the day next to attend to the matrimonial business and finds out that he has been humbugged and likewise made a fool of.

A few weeks ago, Mr. Villard, the President of the North Pacific Railroad and two or three other great companies, was regarded as one of the successful millionairs of the country. He has resigned the Presidency of all the companies, and it is said that he is financially ruined, having sunk his entire private fortune in his effort to support the Northern Pacific stock. Very rich men have their trials and burdens frequently that brings them extreme mental suffering.

We are now the third country in the world for aggregate beer drinking. Germany leads with a production of 1, 041,278,000 gallons, England follows with 996,985,000, and we come next, a bad or good third, with 376,775,000 The per capita thirst of our people is, however, small as compared with that of several countries. In Germany the consumption per head is 134.40 quarts a year, or, as there are four or five glasses in a quart, about two glasses a day for every man woman and child in the country. The rate for Belgium, however, is even higher, the consumption there being 163.25quarts per head. England is third, with a rate of 125.10, and then there is a drop to 63.60, the rate in Denmark. Our averge consumption is only 20. 15 quarts per year.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for February opens with one of the most charming steel-engravings we have ever seen, called: "Two Little Customers." Besides this, however, are several other beautiful embellishments, among them a splendid colored pattern. There is also another engraving—"Homeless and blind"—illustrating a pathetic little story. The double-sized colored fashion-plate—a specialty of this magazine— is even more beautiful than usual. As for the stories, though always good, they are this month unusually so. Mrs. Ann. S. Stephens continues "Her Season In Washington," a novelet that promises to be the best she has ever written. There is also a powerful story called "Jule." Altogether this is a very superior number. We do not see how any lady can get along without "Peterson." The terms are but TWO DOLLARS a year. Great deductions are made for clubs, and elegant premiums given for getting up clubs. Now is the time to get up clubs for 1884. Specimens are sent gratis, if written for, to persons wishing to subscribe or get up clubs. Address PETERSON'S MAGAZINE, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Rooster that Fasted Six Weeks.

A remarkable case of fowl fasting came to light on the premises of Soloman Winder, tanner, at Emaus. It appears that some of his chickens were in the habit of laying their eggs in the open space under the pig pen, and that with a view of preventing this, because of the difficulty in getting at the nests, he boarded up the space, so as to keep the fowls out. Six weeks afterward, while feeding his pigs, he thought he heard a chicken under the pen, and on opening the place out hobbled a rooster so weak that he was almost dead, having been confined in his narrow cell without light, food or water for a month and a half. He was carefully nursed back to health, and now crows louder than any of the rest.

An Old Couple Assaulted.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—At about 8 o'clock this morning James C. Townsend, aged 75, and his wife aged 70, living in Oyster Bay, were found by a hired man lying on their kitchen floor unconscious, having been assaulted with a mason's hammer. The house had been robbed. Simon Rapylyea, colored, has been arrested. Mr. Townsend is still unconscious. Mrs. Townsend rallied during the morning, but has since become unconscious.

DIED.

At his residence in Penn township, on the 7th inst. Hon. John Smith, aged 76 years, 3 months and 11 days.

On the 9 th inst. at Millheim Mary wife of David Ulrich aged 55 years, 1 month and 13 days.

Benefits of Advertising.

Bread is the staff of life, so is advertising the staff of business. Blessed are they who do not advertise, for they shall rarely be troubled with a customer. You can't eat enough in a week to last you a year, and you can't advertise on that plan either. Business can go without advertising, so can a wagon go without greasing, but in both cases it is hard work. No bells ring so loud as a good advertisement. People are more apt to heed what they read than what they hear. Those who take the lead in pushing their business through the newspaper, generally take the lead in everything else. If you don't mean to attend to your business, and prefer a slender income while your neighbors grow rich, it won't pay to advertise. Judicious advertising is sure to bring large returns, to increase your business reputation, to add to your acquaintance. If you haven't business, advertise If you have business, advertise. It is a "poor rule that wont work both ways." A place well advertised is known to many, while one not advertised is known only to a few passers-by. Quitting advertising in dull times is like pulling down a dam when water is low. When trade revives, it will rush by him who does not stay it with ready customers. The way to have such always on hand is through advertising.

A Carson City photographer treats each customer who will take it, to a drink of liquor, in order to get the proper "pleased expression" on the face.

The Philadelphia Times, 1884.

THE TIMES will enter upon the new year stronger and more prosperous than ever before in its history —more widely read and quoted, more heartily commended, and more fiercely criticised with a more complete organization, and an abler staff of contributors—and with the same independence and fearlessness that has made it successful and powerful in the past.

THE TIMES has no party to follow, on candidates to advance, but will meet every issue, as it has ever done, with consistent devotion to the right, to honest government, had the public welfare. And, while maintaning its position as the leading paper of Philadelphia, it will aim to be continually in advance in all that can add value to a newspaper.

The value of a newspaper is not in its size or display, but in the intelligence and care, the conciseness and freshness with which it is edited. THE TIMES spends laivshly for news from all parts of the world, but all its dispatches are carefully edited and condensed, in order to give the complete news of the day in the most concise and attractive shape, and with it a large variety of entertaining and instructive reading. The best writers at home and abroad are employed to enrich its colums, and to make it a journal adapted both to the busy man and to the leisnre of the home circle, a welcome visitor to intelligent and honest citizens of every political, religious, and social taste.

THE WEEKLY TIMES is altogether different from the weekly newspapers of twenty years ago. The telegraph and better local newspapers everywhere, especially in the thriving centres of rural population, have made the old weekly metropolitan newspaper unsatisfying. Those that cling to their ancient usages have lost their hold on our forward-moving people; they are but shadows of their former greatness, and they have but a shadow of their former power. Those papers have had their usefulness, but it is gone; and, with it, they are going, too. It was not the fault of papers: it was the improvement of the country that brought about the change. Men and women, wherever they live, now require fresher news; and they require more than news.

THE WEEKLY TIMES gathers off the types ot every passing week whatever has lasting interests to people at large, and sets it before them in such generosity of paper and print as would have astonished us all twenty years ago.

DAILY—Twelve cents a week, fifty cents a montn, $5 a year, two cents a copy.

SUNDAY—Four cents a copy, $2 a year.

WEEKLY—One copy, $2 a year; five copies, $8 a year; ten copies, $15 a year; twenty copies, $25 a year, with one copy free to the getter-up of every club.

THE TIMES,
Philadelphia.

DID YOU

ever read a patent medicine advertisement? Yes, say you; one can't pick up a paper now-a-days that is not one-half medicine advertisements. No doubt of it. Column after column of most wonderful cures performed on Jones and Brown away off somewhere.

But did you ever read of a manufacturer of a medicine who had the courage, or had sufficient confidence in his medicine himself to say. "if you are not cured or benefited go to where you bought the medicine and demand your money and it will be given to you."

You didn't? Well, neither did we; but there are such remedies nevertheless.

Are you troubled with torpid or diseased Liver, inactive Kidneys, Billiousness, Constipation, &c., &c., use McDonald's improved Liver Pills—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Do you inherit Scrofula or Erisipilas? If so, try McDonald's Great Blood Purifier—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Do you want to feel secure from those frightful and oftimes fatal visitors, Croup and Whooping Cough, as well as having in the family the one incomparable cough medicine for all colds and lung troubles. Then buy Dr. Kessler's famous cough medicine—money refunded to all dissatisfied purchasers.

Do you waut a whole Drug store in a little glass bottle: then secure at once, Curtis' Carmelite Cordial: the greatest medicine ever devised for Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramps, &c. Never was equaled as a general family pain curer—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Have you reason, from symptoms exhibited, to suspect that any of your children are troubled with worms? If so, let me say to you, for smallness of dose, easiness to take, efficationsness, as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders have no equal on earth—money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Have you a valuable horse for which you want a medicine to enrich the blood, improve the appetite and digestion, make his coat glossy, eye bright and step elastic? Give him McDonald's Tonic and Blood purifying Horse and Cattle Powder. We don't think it it possible to produce a better medicine for stock.

Don't use it unless your animal is sick and needs a medicine. If you want to use a stock powder for fun, buy somedody else's—Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Dr. Barber at his Drug store, in Middleburgh, Snyder county, Penna., keeps these remedies for sale and is authorized to refund the money to any dissatisfied buyer. Now ask yourself the question, can I afford to place a humbug before you under the above conditions, or would a druggist of J Eisenhuth's standing and reputation be likely to have these medicines in his store, much less recommend them, if they were not medicines of merit.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.
N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR

For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
Smith's Tonic Syrup
FEVER and AGUE
Or CHILLS and FEVER,
AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
